Launceston legal firm set to expand

Launceston legal firm, Rae & Partners Lawyers is set for further expansion with the announcement of a merger with well-known Devonport firm, Levis Stace and Cooper. The merger will take place from 1 May 2010.

Rae & Partners CEO, Anthony Wright stated that while both firms will benefit from shared resources and infrastructure, their respective clients will also gain from the merger.

‘The combined depth of experience within these two well-established businesses will enable a complete legal service across the north and north-west of the State’, Mr. Wright said.

‘Rae and Partners has made a significant investment in Launceston in recent years with new premises and additional staff. We are optimistic about the local economy and believe that our expanded business will encourage further growth’.
